PREFERS SUICIDE TO DISGRACE OF BEING LODGED IN COUNTY HOME

Henry Lewis, Widower of 70 Years,
Shoots Himself Through Head
With Revolver.

IS FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM

Would Have Been Taken to the Poor
Asylum Today, Had he Been Alive.

SEVERAL PEOPLE HEAR SHOTS

Coroner Believes Act Premeditated on Account of Actions of Yesterday—Calls Barber.

Evidently preferring death by his own hands rather than the disgrace of being lodged in the county poor asylum, Henry Lewis, a widower, about seventy years old, shot himself through the head with a revolver some time last night or this morning at his room in the Western hotel, near the C. H. & D. depot. The indications are that Lewis premeditated his own self destruction. He used a thirty-two calibre revolver which was found in his hand this morning.

Lewis usually arose at six o'clock in the morning and came down to breakfast. This morning he did not come down as usual and the hotel proprietor went to his room to arouse him. Repeated attempts failed to bring any response from the other side of the door. The door was broken in and Lewis was found dead, seated in a chair near his bed. He was dressed in his street clothes and had evidently never gone to bed last night. His right hand tightly gripping his revolver lay in his lap, and his head was sunken down on his breast.

The coroner was called and examination showed that Lewis had held the revolver to his head behind his right ear and pulled the trigger. The bullet coursed through his head and lodged in his left temple. There were scarcely any powder burns on his head.

All arrangements practically had been made to take Lewis to the poor asylum, east of the city today. It is said that he had been sick for the past month or so and had been unable to do hardly any manual labor. It is understood that he was out of funds and unable to pay for his board and room at the hotel. For that reason it was arranged for him to live off the county.

Lewis, although having an income only from what he made while employed at the local factories, was always considered a rather smart dresser. In his more palmy days, many local people can recall when he appeared on the streets, dressed very neatly and with a costly black silk plug hat on his head. On account of this eccentricity, he had a large collection of clothes, all good. He had them all packed in three trunks.

When John Humes, superintendent of the poor asylum, called yesterday to make arrangements to take him to the asylum, Lewis showed him the excess baggage that he wished to take to the poor farm with him. Mr. Humes told him that would be impossible as they did not have any room to spare and had no place for three trunks. He told Lewis that he could have one trunk of clothes and the rest he should leave behind. Lewis objected very strenuously, but finally submitted to the inevitable. One trunk was procured for him and last night it is said that he prepared to pack all of his best clothes in the one receptacle.

The coroner, Dr. A. G. Shauck, of Arlington, believes that Lewis' destructive act was premeditated. He is led to that assertion because Lewis called his barber to his room yesterday, but he could not come at that time. Although Lewis may have only been making preparations to go to the poor asylum, the coroner believes that he had planned to take his own life last night and that he wanted to prepare himself for burial.

The story was recited on the streets today that Lewis had purchased a valuable coffin two months ago, in which he wished to be buried. It has been learned that that story is absolutely without foundation.

Several people believe that they heard a shot in that vicinity this morning about four o'clock. One of the boarders at the Western hotel declares that he heard a muffled sound about that time, but was only half awake and did not realize what it was. Stewart Beale says that he was returning from work at the city water, light and power plant about four o'clock this morning and while in Third street near the school building, thought he heard a shot from the direction in which the hotel is located. Residents of North Morgan street also assert that they heard a shot about four o'clock this morning.

Little is known of Lewis' relatives or of his age. It is believed that he was near seventy years of age. His wife died about ten years ago when he resided in North Sexton street. He has one near relative surviving him, a sister, Mrs. Carter, in Kokomo. She has been notified of the suicide.

So far no arrangements have been made for the funeral as no communication has been had from Mrs. Carter.

Dissatisfaction Among Patrons of the City Electric Plant.

There appears to be great dissatisfaction among patrons of the city electric lighting plant, says the Knightstown Banner. One firm that had been paying a flat rate of $4 per month for some time, last month was taxed $19. The meter simply indicated what the firm had used. Another firm that had been getting its lights on a flat rate at $2 per month, used $11 worth of electricity according to the meter.

Shawmut Council No. 17 degree of Pocahontas of Connersville has issued invitations to Lurline Council No. 296 and Mahoning Council No. 36 of this city to attend their council on next Tuesday night. They will adopt a class of pale-faces. Great Pocahontas Sister Nannie Riggs and the great Wenonah, Sister Bird, will be present.

THE WEATHER

Fair. Colder in extreme south portion.

ELECTRICITY TO BE OFF.

As was the case last week, the electricity will be shut off at the city water, light and power plant at midnight and will be off until tomorrow morning. This will be done every week until the new boilers have been installed at the plant. At present the steam is being generated with two boilers and it is necessary to shut down each week to clean them out.

LOCALS PILED UP LARGE SCORE

High School Defeated Connersville
Five in Sensational Game Last Night, 43 to 17.

SECOND TEAM LOST, 16 TO 10

Bebout Was the Star, Making 29
Points—Contest Was Clean
Throughout.

In a sensational game of basketball last night, Rushville high school defeated Connersville high school by a score of 43 to 17. Probably the largest crowd that ever attended a game in this city, was in attendance. Many rooters accompanied the Connersville team to this city and were in evidence at all times. The victory, or rather the ease with which it was won, came as a surprise to the locals as they had expected a closer contest. The game while one-sided, was nevertheless interesting and there was not a dull moment during the whole contest.

The first half opened with a rush, both teams appearing to be equally matched. The locals gradually forged ahead and by superior team work, gained a lead that was never overcome. Connersville would work the ball down to the basket, almost without striking distance, only to lose it by the effective work of the Rushville guards. The game was very fast and comparatively clean, few fouls being called. The first half ended 24 to 9 in favor of the locals.

The local five came back stronger than ever in the last half and completely out-played Connersville. Many sensational baskets were made by the forwards of the Rushville team, who seemed to be able to locate the net at most any angle. Connersville while beaten, never gave up the fight and were still in the game at the final whistle.

Bebout, captain and center on the local team, was distinctly the star of the game, making 29 of the 43 points. Connersville tried every way to guard him, but to no avail. He made goals from almost every angle and played a whirl-wind game, covering the floor in a bewildering manner.

In the curtain raiser the Connersville second team defeated the local second team, the score being 16 to 10. The game was fast and closely contested through out, the first half ending with the score tied, 9 to 9. In the second half Connersville forged ahead and were never stopped.

The teams lined up as follows: C. H. S.—Eastleman and Bell, forwards; Ochiltree, Center; Baker, Mickers and Meyers guards. R. H. S.—Cameron and Kirkpatrick, forwards; Bebout Center; Carroll and Petry, guards.

Points scored; Eastleman 7, Bell 4, Ochiltree 6, Cameron 8, Kirkpatrick 6, Bebout 29. Referee, Hallam; Umpire, Smelser.

YOUNG OFF FOR PRISON.

Frankfort Times: Deputy Sheriff Miller left Wednesday for Jeffersonville, taking Arthur L. Young, the forger to the prison, to begin serving his sentence of two to fourteen years. Young is the stranger who came to this city some time ago and forged the names of a number of Frankfort business men to orders for printing which he turned into the News office.

THAT'S OUR IDEA.

Connersville News: Representative Billman has a new bill for changing judicial districts. His new plan is to put Rush and Henry together. He seems to be willing to do anything to "shake" Rush county.

Harrie Jones has sold the good pacer, Gordon Prince, Jr., 2:07 1/4 to George E. Lattimer of Buffalo, N. Y. This horse has been three different miles in his races in 2:04 and better, and there is no question, if nothing happens him in 1911, he will be one of the prominent 2:08 pacers in the Grand Circuit. The price has not been reported, but it is understood he sold well up in the four figures.

SAYS SHE DID NOT DESERT CHILDREN

Mrs. Jesse Pickard Asserts That She Left Home Because of Her Husband's Threats.

SUPPORTED TWO OF THEM

Mrs. Jesse Pickard, whose four children were taken to the Spiceland orphans' home yesterday, and who, it is alleged, deserted them, says that there are two sides to the story and that her's has never been heard. She declares that her home was unpleasant principally because there was a continual "rag-chewing" and because her husband threatened to kill her on numerous occasions.

She asserts that she never deserted her children. Mrs. Pickard says that when she left home she took a boy and a girl, leaving the other two for her husband to care for. She alleges that her husband finally managed to get both of them back, stealing the boy about a week ago and taking the girl one day recently while she was returning from school at the noon hour. Mrs. Pickard declares that she took in washings to support the two children which she took.

A COLD WAVE IS PROMISED

Country doctors, and city doctors as well, commenting on the health situation in the county, say that they are having a big lot of grip to take care of, many bad sore throats and some tonsillitis proper, but disclaim any knowledge of more serious complaints. There has been a remarkable absence of fatal cases of pneumonia this season thanks to a campaign of education which the health authorities have been conducting.

Had it not been for the extremely unhealthy weather conditions in the last few weeks, physicians declare that they could not have had the practice which they have been enjoying. Especially during the past

WILL COMBINE I. & C. OFFICES

Indianapolis Department Will be Installed Here if Plans do Not Miscarry.

EMPLOYEES BEING LET OUT

Announced That Track And Line Departments Will be Combined
With One Head.

That the I. & C. proposes to combine its Indianapolis office here with the general offices, so that all of the business of the road will be done from this city, has been rumored for several weeks, and it will be done if the present plans do not miscarry. It is the plan of the company to move their Indianapolis offices into the building here so that all of the business will be transacted from one place.

Along with the change in the offices it is planned to make a general change in the employees, much of which has already been done. Only a few weeks ago several resignations were handed into the company and were accepted. Among that number was that of J. W. Moore, track superintendent, who has been with the company since its origin.

It was announced today that the office of the line superintendent would be done away with and would be combined with the track superintendency into one office so that one man can fill the place. "Doc" Emory, line superintendent, has been released to take effect the first of next month. Len Cox of Anderson, but who was employed on the I. & C. when it was first built, has been retained to take charge of the combined departments.

It was announced today that a new order would go into effect on the I. & C. Monday. The new ruling requires that both the motorman and the conductor repeat the train order to the dispatcher. Heretofore, the conductor took care of the orders by himself.

COFFEE COSTS TWO CENTS MORE SINCE FEW DAYS AGO

Local Dealers Have Announced That it is on Upward Flight, Caused by Growers.

CONTROLS BRAZIL MARKET

Do you drink coffee? It is going to cost you about half a cent more a cup from this time forward. It went up two cents a pound in all the local groceries Thursday. The reason is obvious and the grocers are not backward in telling it. The jobbers have raised the price that much and retailers must keep pace with the big dictators.

And then in turn the jobbers have been dictated to by the growers who live in the sunny land of South America. A Chicago jobber predicted that before the end of many months coffee which had sold for many years on a twenty-five cent basis would soon be selling for thirty-five. The first increase made the cost of the beverage producing berries five cents a pound higher than before, but it comes to light that the jobbers did not cover the entire increase in cost to them when they raised their prices. They lived in hopes that the market would break, so they accepted two cents less than their regular profit for a time. The expected break did not come so they are now playing even. The advance will affect fully eighty-five per cent of the coffees of the country.

As a reason for the increase in the price the jobbers assert that Brazil, the chief coffee growing country in the world, is in full control of the out put there and they are aware that the crop conditions and the world's visible supply will allow them to squeeze a few more dollars from the coffee drinkers.

Unknown Carries Bomb Onto a Ferry Boat.

HE WAS BLOWN TO PIECES

Six Other Passengers Were Injured, Two of Whom Will Die, and a Great Hole Was Torn in the Side of the Steamer—Sensational Incident on Board a Crowded Ferry Plying Between San Francisco and Oakland.

San Francisco, Jan. 14.—Just after the ferryboat Berkeley left this city last night for Oakland on the 4:50 trip, an unknown man went into the lavatory and exploded a dynamite bomb. He was blown to pieces and six other men in the room were badly injured. Two of them will die. One man had his right arm blown off, while another lost both legs and is otherwise mangled. A great hole was torn in the side of the steamer near the water line.

The Berkeley carried about 2,000 persons, mostly commuters on the way home from business in the city. The explosion, which shook the vessel from stem to stern, caused something of a panic, which quickly subsided when it was found that the vessel was in no danger. That the steamer was not sunk is a miracle, as the hole in the side is very near the water's edge. Just as the Berkeley was leaving her slip a rather poorly dressed man was seen to enter the lavatory. A moment later came an explosion which caused the vessel to rock as in a heavy sea. The officers soon quieted the passengers and the steamer completed her trip to Oakland. The body of the suicide, badly mangled, lies on a slab in Oakland, but has not been identified.

DISTRACTED WIDOW

Poisoned Her Four-Year-Old Son to Get It Out of the Way.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Edith Melber, a Schenectady widow, arrested here, has confessed to poisoning her four-year-old son, whose body was found in the suburbs of Albany a few days ago. She said she had tried to have the child cared for in various institutions in Albany, but had failed because she had been unable to pay for maintenance. She said that she had to work for her living since her husband died about three years ago and that she found it difficult to do this and care for the child too, and in her distraction decided to dispose of the child.

BODIES CHARRED

New York Central Trains Collide and Wreckage Catches Fire.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 14.—As a result of a rear-end collision between two passenger trains on the New York Central railroad at Batavia, five passengers are dead and twenty were injured, two of whom are not expected to live. The railroad officers say that the accident was due to the engineer of the second train running past signals.

Those killed were asleep in the Pullman and were ground to death instantly. The wreckage caught fire and this, together with escaping jets of steam from the engine boiler, so mutilated and charred the bodies as to make identification difficult.

KELLOGG CALLS JOHN D. A LIAR

Says Oil King Made a False Affidavit.

SUPREME COURT INTERESTED

When Government Prosecutor in His Argument Against the Standard Oil Company Made the Statement That Rockefeller Had Made an Affidavit That Was Not True, the Grave Justices Sat Up and Took Notice.

Washington, Jan. 14.—After Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the government in the case against the Standard Oil company, had devoted more than three hours in enumerating the alleged offenses of Mr. Milburn's client, the favorable picture of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey which John G. Milburn, attorney for that corporation, drew for the benefit of the supreme court, was somewhat marred. Mr. Kellogg was particularly harsh on John D. Rockefeller, charging him with having made an affidavit that was "untrue."

Kellogg was manifestly in earnest when he began his argument. "This is a case against a holding company," said he. "I have listened with admiration to the charming story of counsel, but I shall not deal in romance. I intend to present facts that are in this record. I want to say to this court on my oath as a member of the bar that the equal of this record in oppression has not been found in the commercial history of the country. I distrust my ability to present the facts."

Mr. Kellogg introduced his argument by going back to the formation of a South Improvement company in Pennsylvania, through the agency of which, he alleged, the Standard Oil company began the business of rebating. He declared that the South Improvement company was the "rock" upon which the Standard Oil company was built. He recited again the story of the methods by which the Standard Oil company enjoyed the benefit of rebates, not only on its own shipments, but also on the shipments of its competitors. Even after the Pennsylvania legislature, in response to a public demand, had dissolved the South Improvement company, the Standard continued to enjoy the rebates through other influences. He estimated that $5,000,000 in rebates were paid to the Standard by the Pennsylvania railroad alone.

"I have been the attorney for railroads and I am familiar with the curse of rebates," exclaimed Mr. Kellogg, "but the record of this case, which shows that the Standard was fattening upon a steady revenue derived from the shipments of its struggling competitors, goes beyond anything that has ever come within my knowledge."

He declared that the Pennsylvania railroad, to meet the drain upon its resources by the rebates paid, had advanced transportation rates on oil, already prohibitive, to six times what they were before.

Continuing his narrative of the strenuous history of the Standard Oil in Pennsylvania, and of the alleged benefits it enjoyed under the South Improvement company contracts, Mr. Kellogg attacked John D. Rockefeller personally. He told how public indignation against Mr. Rockefeller and the Pennsylvania railroad grew because of the alleged discriminations and rebates until finally they were indicted. He referred to the fact that when Mr. Rockefeller was on the witness stand he could not remember the circumstances connected with the indictment.

"His mind was so busy in those days with the details of barrel making and such matters," said Mr. Kellogg, "that the fact that he had been indicted made no impression upon his mind, apparently."

At one time Mr. Kellogg charged Mr. Rockefeller with having made a false affidavit in 1881, when, in the course of a suit brought in Ohio upon a trade agreement, he met the charge that the Standard Oil of Ohio was in a combination with other concerns to create a monopoly and control prices. Mr. Rockefeller, so Lawyer Kellogg charged, made an affidavit denying any combination or affiliation with other companies. Mr. Kellogg said that this was at a time when the companies were combined in the trusts of 1879. The charge aroused the interest of the members of the court and Justice Holmes suggested that under the peculiar conditions of the trust of 1879—the affidavit of Mr. Rockefeller may have been "literally true."

"I think not," quickly replied Mr. Kellogg with great emphasis. "I believe that even shaving to the wind as close as you can and giving him the benefit of every doubt, Mr. Rockefeller's affidavit was untrue. I know this: Either he testified falsely then or he testified falsely in this case."

"Did Mr. Rockefeller try to explain his affidavit when it was brought to his attention?" asked Justice Lurton. "No," sharply replied Mr. Kellogg, "he could not explain it."

NOT A WHEEL TURNING ON PORTUGUESE LINES

Entire Railway System of Country Tied Up By Strike.

Lisbon, Jan. 14.—Strikers continue peacefully to hold the entire railway system of the country, including the books and offices. This is the fourth day that no trains have been running in Portugal. They declare they will not yield an iota until their claims are satisfied. Conferences between the strike leaders and representatives of the railways and the government have failed. The employers offered certain concessions, but the strikers did not like them. The latter are convinced that the railways will eventually surrender unconditionally.

A partial and erratic mail service is maintained between Oporto and Lisbon by sea, and elsewhere by auto.

Export trade is paralyzed. Lisbon is suffering in many ways, especially from lack of coal. It is likely the employees in other industries will emulate the railway men if the latter are successful.

GETTING TOGETHER

Methodist Church, North and South, Begins Reunion Movement.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 14.—A long step was taken here in the organic union of Methodism in America when Centenary Methodist Episcopal church south and the Methodist Episcopal church (northern branch) agreed to consolidate and build one great church and be one people. Twenty-five representatives of each branch of Methodism met and members of these two churches, which separated in 1845 on account of political and ecclesiastical differences, declared themselves one in spirit, and while recognizing loyalty to their respective denominations, every speaker showed himself unalterably in favor of a reunion of the Methodist family in America.

Foley's Kidney Remedy An Appreciation.

L. McConnell, Catherine St., Elmira, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken." Sold by F. B. Johnson.

Several persons who were interested in preserving the present uniform school book law when attempts were made to repeal it at the last session of the legislature have noticed that Senator Edward E. Moore, (Rep.), who was chairman of the senate committee on education in the session of 1909, was left off of that committee this year and that Senator Ralph K. Kane (Rep.), who was not a member of the committee in 1909, was made a member by the Democrats this year, says the Indianapolis News.

Some of the friends of the uniform text book law say they see some significance in this situation. Senator Moore, as chairman of the committee in 1909, they point out, succeeded in smothering a bill presented by Senator Kane against that law.

Mr. Moore was a friend of the present law and was active in repelling the assaults on it. However, Levi P. Harlan, who was a member of the former committee on education and was a supporter of the present law, was made a member of the committee this year. Mr. Harlan says he believes in the uniform school book system.

Senator Kane says he has not prepared any bills this year on the subject of school text books and is not acquainted with any proposed legislation of that nature.

"I presented a good bill at the last session," said Mr. Kane. "There were some other bills on the same subject which did not have as much merit in them. The fight made on them hurt the chances of my bill, which was one of merit."

There is talk that Homer L. Cook of Indianapolis is being seriously considered for the chairmanship of the house committee on education. Representatives of the big book houses are showing great activity around the hotels.

THIS PAPER REPRESENTS FOR FOREIGN ADVERTISING BY THE

GENERAL OFFICES
NEW YORK AND CHICAGO
BRANCHES IN ALL THE PRINCIPAL CITIES

Society in Mid-winter.

This is the highwater mark of social activity in both country and city. The newspaper social columns are filled with what seems to the philosopher but an arid desert of names of "those present." But the inclusion and omission of certain individuals, in the towns big enough to develop their "Smart Sets" means to one the fruit of an ardent climb up the social ladder, and to another defeat of ambition and the shattering of hopes.

Social prizes, like the other goods of this world are distributed most unevenly. Those who are left behind in the race can console themselves with the reflection that such successes are apt to be paid for at a high price.

Many tedious people must be humored and flattered, and for every invitation received some returns has to be made. In short it takes generalship and a laborious massing of forces, to win this kind of triumph in any large field of conflict. The people outside the game in the simple hearted comradeship of country life have much to be thankful for.

Promote Own Interests.

Three or four national magazines have established a headquarters at Washington and are asking contributions to maintain a league to help them nominate candidates for president of the United States. Their organization they call the "Progressive Federation." The present occupant is the White House has been striking close to the graft on the government treasury which has long been worked by the millionaire owners of these magazines, whereby the people pay the cost of transportation for tons upon tons of advertising matter for which these rich gentry receive big pay. It is not surprising that the treasury grafter should want some one in the White house who will serve their own special and selfish interests by allowing them to continue to line their own pockets out of the people's purse. And every cheap demagogue in the country is willing to trade acquiescence in their grafting for the magazine trust's columns. Why these magazines should ask the people to contribute a campaign fund to help them on with their private graft is not easily understood, but gall is not a lost art with the treasury looters of the magazine trust who are battling to maintain privilege for themselves under the banner of opposition to privilege for other trusts.

The so-called "Progressive Federation" has sent out articles to newspapers all over the United States, small and large ones alike, asking their assistance in the movement. Newspapers all over the land are flocking to their standard—not. They head the article which was released for publication yesterday "Freedom in 1912."

They propose to take a preliminary postal vote for a progressive presidential nominee and asked that all voters, who fill out the blank, that they would have the newspaper publishers pledge themselves to attend the primary election in 1912. They state that the purpose of the organization is to get progressive control of the State and national conventions in the two great parties next year. In other words, instead of having two parties in this United States, they would combine the two and be sole king over all the land.

If the four great magazines had the interests of the people of this country as near to their hearts as they had their own interests, perhaps it would be of interest to the people to take hold.

One of the questions which seems to be coming up is how to check large land holdings and thus also check the diminution of the country population. Smaller holdings and consequently more efficient tilling will produce better results and afford more wealth from the land. But how to remedy the evil is the question. Whether it is possible to prevent constitutionally the successful farmer from buying the land of the unsuccessful one. The Muncie Press says on this subject:

A bill has been considered by a State legislator to limit the amount of farm land to one section, and there probably are those who see in this the remedy for the situation. We doubt it, however. In the first place, if a limit is put on a man's ambitions, it is possible that he will not be as useful in feeding the world as he ought to be. It is probable that to limit the farmer to a certain amount of land would be to discourage him. There are two sides to the question, and they are both serious.

There is one certainty, however. We want the farms of the future to be not overly large; we want the farm population to be proportionately large and we want the farms to be tilled for every bit of feeding power there is in them. Just how all this is to be brought about is a problem of too many phases to be solved by one legislature, but the one question has the privilege to try.

Senator E. E. Moore's proposed bill to limit farm land ownership is receiving wide circulation and attention. The Republican received a communication this morning from Francis B. Livesey of Clarkson, Maryland, who saw the mention of this bill in the Baltimore Star. Mr. Livesey addresses an "open letter" to Senator E. E. Moore, and this letter is printed in another column of the Republican. Mr. Livesey puts the blame of the farm desertions on the public school, but does not explain how and in what manner education is a deterrent to agriculture. Many theories have been advanced as to the cause of the exodus from the country. Prof. Christie of Purdue University in a recent lecture at Huntington, blamed the girls. Just how education should be the cause it is hard to understand. Education is considered an essential the world over to modern life in every phase of it and a valuable asset.

One great objection to having the Panama fair in California would be removed, if our Pacific slope friends would make the price of the ticket and the time required for the journey, the same as if it were at New Orleans.

Foraker says we have a right to fortify the canal. Uncle Sam is up against the hard alternative as to whether guns or lawyers are the more expensive.

Gov. Carroll of Iowa in his inaugural, asked stricter laws for the safety of minors. Our experience of minors is that safety is just what they don't want.

Rock Island Road agents rejoice over 9,000,000 dry farming acres in Colorado, but nearly every State has that amount of prohibition territory.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

An Open Letter to Senator E. E. Moore of Connorsville.

Dear Sir:—The Baltimore Star of January 10th states that you are thinking that 640 acres should be enough for any one farmer, as large land holdings have a tendency to drive young men away from the farm. It further states you got your cue from Prof. Christie of Purdue University.

It is so seldom that we see a State legislator anyway inclined to give a thought to this greatest question of the day, that when we do it is worth while to talk to him a little. It is not the girls that are seducing the boys from the farms, it is the schools do it for both boys and girls. Even the agricultural schools have become proverbial for this tendency. Agriculture in the public schools is all folly also.

The great slogan of the land is "Get Education!" After that is gotten it is supposed the getter is capable for farming, politics, finance or religion. Whatever the getter does get, he gets a disgust for the farm. This was first proven on a large scale in New England. Years ago its farms became largely abandoned. It was noted that years ago that section led in education. Compulsory education, which you now have in Indiana, begun there. The boys were not brought up to work as were their fathers.

From New England this compulsory education, with child labor laws added, has spread over the country and just exactly with its spread has the farm abandonment idea spread also. We want it stopped, and, in fact, as Herbert Spencer said, we want all forms of State education stopped. The Portland Oregonian says: "Our public school system is Socialism itself." Socialism and agriculture don't mix. But it is toward Socialism everything is driving.

Rudolph Spreckels had a long article in the Chicago News the other day calling for "aback to the land" movement and the Chicago Record-Herald played second fiddle to him. They said it was time to stop talking and get to work, but there is only one way to work on the subject and that is along my line. What do you say?

Very truly
FRANCIS B. LIVESEY,
Clarkson, Maryland.

New York has grown faster than any other city in the world in the last half century. It has added 17,250 persons to its population every year since 1861.

But what's that got to do with this session of the legislature?

We note at this time that a Pennsylvania woman publicly horse-whipped her husband and then had him arrested for wife desertion. That's going woman suffrage one better.

Now comes the country correspondent with the solution of a problem which has worried the heads of some of our greatest legislators. He proposes that the election law be amended so that the poll book holders be sheltered from the chilly blasts on election day. They often catch cold. They can have our share of it.

GREAT INTEREST IN MEETINGS

Protracted Services in Glenwood M.

E. Church Are Sole Topics of Conversation in Village.

SINGING IS A BIG FEATURE

Interest in the revival meetings in the Glenwood M. E. church has grown to such an extent that it is the one topic of conversation in the village. Conversations occur almost every night and Evangelist Baker's preaching is the kind that goes straight to the mark and hits hard.

One of the features of the meeting is the hearty congregational singing under the leadership of Prof. Hutchins. It can be heard several blocks from the church. Evangelist Baker announces the following subjects for Sunday: In the morning at 10:45, "How we Know we Are Saved;" in the evening at 7:15, the Evangelist will deliver his popular lecture entitled "The Devil Among the Church Members and From the Ball Room to Hell." He promises that there will not be an uninteresting moment in the whole lecture. Prof. Hutchins will sing several solos. A silver collection will be taken at the close of the lecture. The meetings will close next Wednesday night.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vaudelet will show the usual two reels of pictures tonight. The first is an Imp film, "The Stage Letter." This is said to be a good picture, well acted. The other is a Bison film, "The Sinner's Sacrifice." A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Palace will have an Essanay film tonight, the subject of which is "A Tangled Masquerade." The picture has a good view of comedy running in it and tell the story of a love affair with two men after the hand of the same woman. A masquerade is shown, which creates several entanglements. A new illustrated song will be sung.

Large crowds were out last night to see the Chinatown and Bowery picture at the Star Grand and everybody was well pleased with the entertainment. They will be shown again tonight. The regular program for tonight consists of a Thonhouser film entitled "The Fairies' Halloween." Marie's father fashions a pumpkin into a jack-o-lantern for the child's amusement; when bedtime comes Marie dreams that the queen of fairies appears, brings the pumpkin and her doll to life and then takes them on a tour of Fairyland. They are guests of honor at a Fairy Halloween party and are having a delightful time when Marie awakens. Earl Robertson will sing "I Never Knew Till Now."

Manager Carr of the Star Grand has secured one of the biggest and best treats ever offered by that theater. The attraction is the Great Ita Company, which is this week at the Gennett theater at Richmond, where they are the talk of the town. Ita is a California girl, 16 years old and is known as a mentalist or seeress, who astonished the country by her ability to tell the past, present and future correctly. She is accompanied by a company of fourteen people who provide a musical bill of singing, dancing and music and comedy, all clean and entertaining. Owing to the large number of people and acts in the company there will be but two shows given nightly, the first act at 7:30 and the second at 9, with a complete change each and every night. No pictures shown during this engagement. The Ita Company will be here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 19, 20 and 21, with special matinee Friday for the ladies at 3 o'clock and a regular matinee Saturday at 2 o'clock.

H. B. Warner comes to the Murat theater, Indianapolis, next Monday for the entire week in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Paul Armstrong's detective melodrama. Mr. Warner appears in the role of the reformed bank burglar, the part he created, and the company surrounding him is practically the original company. Mr. Warner was leading man several years ago with Eleanor Robson, and he has done some remarkably good acting in the past, but the decisive hit of his career has been made in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." The play is based upon a short story by the late O. Henry, and the hero is a young fellow who is a reformed bank looter, pardoned from the penitentiary. He is trying to live an upright life and has obtained a position in a bank. A detective is constantly on his trail. There comes a time when, to save the life of a child accidentally locked in a vault, "Jimmy" has to resort to his old trick of opening a safe by the sense of touch, thereby confessing his identity to the detective.

But he got no answer, in words or otherwise. There was no outcry, no stifled sobbing. Nothing at all but sigh and whine of the wind.

He moved forward, groping in the dark, but stopped when he felt the pressure of the table across his thighs. He could do nothing without a light. He would re-light the candle, first of all, and then he would find her.

He took a bit of flint, a nail and a rope of tow from his pocket. He struck a spark, but it failed to kindle the tow.

It was at that instant that Philip alighted.

Philip sprang clear of his planes, left them as they were there at the tunnel mouth, and walked steadily up toward the pilot house door.

Roscoe, on hearing his voice the first time, had dropped the articles which encumbered his hands and groped on the table for the revolver. Before he could put his hand on it Cayley spoke the second time.

At that, wanting no weapon, confident that he needed none, his great arms aching for the feel of the sky-man's flesh beneath their grasp, he moved a step nearer the door and waited.

He saw Philip cross the threshold, unseeing—suspecting, apparently, nothing; saw him, at last, within hand's reach.

Just as he touched him he uttered a sobbing oath, and his great hand faltered, for Philip's knife had struck through, clean to the hilt, and just below the heart.

The effect of the shock was only momentary. With a yell of rage, he sprang upon Cayley, crowded him back against the wall, tore at him blindly, like a wild beast, and finally getting Philip's right fore-arm fairly in the grip of both hands, he snapped it like a pipestem.

In a moment Cayley got round behind him and with the crook of his good arm round Roscoe's neck, he succeeded in forcing him to release his grip and in throwing him heavily.

As he lay, his body projected through the doorway, out into the tunnel.

Philip left him huddled there, and went back to the table. He found Roscoe's flint and steel beneath his hand; but it was a full minute before he could summon his courage to strike a light, for the inferences from Roscoe's presence here in the pilot house began to crowd upon him now, grim and horrible. But he struck a spark at last, lighted a candle and looked around.

The reaction of relief turned him, for a moment, giddy, as the glance about the room convinced him that what he feared worst had not happened. But another thought occurred to him, almost at once, when he saw the cover had been removed from the top of the ice chimney.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

Has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Hargrove and Mullin, Druggists.

In his mind, of course, that represented the way Roscoe had come. What, if Jeanne, unable for some reason to defend herself, had chosen, as the lesser evil, to fling herself over the cliff from the tunnel mouth?

The moment he thought of that he went out into the tunnel, stepping over Roscoe's body to do so. He went to the edge and looked over, but it was too dark to see. The light of the aurora which still blazed in the sky, dazzled his eyes, without lighting the surface of the world below.

He must go down there, in order to be sure. He had not stopped to furl his planes when he alighted, and they had wedged themselves sideways into the tunnel, still extended and so ready for flight in an emergency.

He righted them and slipped his arms through the loops that awaited them. He stood for a moment, testing the right wing tentatively. There was a play about it that he did not understand. So far as he could see nothing was broken. The fact that it was his own arm did not occur to him.

He was just turning to dive off the cliff-head when, suddenly, he saw the great form of the man he had supposed to be dead, rise and rush upon him.

Philip's knife had, indeed, inflicted a mortal wound, but a man of Roscoe's physique lets go of life slowly. He was bleeding to death, internally, but the process was, probably, retarded by his huddled position as he lay there in the tunnel.

So he had lain still and awaited his chance. Cayley was standing quite at the edge of the cliff, and the man's momentum carried him over. His clutching hands grasped Cayley's shoulders, and they went down together, over 600 feet of empty space.

For Cayley the space was all too little. As they went over he thought that he and his gigantic enemy were going down to death together. Instinctively, and much quicker than a man can think, he swept his great-fanfall forward and flung himself back in an attempt to correct the balance destroyed by the great weight that was clinging to his shoulders.

They were, of course, bound to go down. Neither his strength nor the area of his planes was sufficient to support them both in the air. But in the position into which he had flung himself they would go down a little more slowly. He would gain, perhaps, a precious second more.

But he did not waste even an infinitesimal moment in any struggle against the force of gravity.

Twice, with all his might, he sent his left fist crashing against the face, the staring, horrible face, that confronted his own. But still that convulsive, dying grasp held fast.

They were now more than a bare 200 feet above the ice. With a supreme effort, an effort whose suddenness availed it better than its strength, he wrenched himself free and the great weight dropped off. Another effort, the instantaneous exertion of every ounce of force he possessed, corrected the sudden change of balance and prevented him from falling, like the great, inert mass he had just cast off.

Trembling, exhausted, he managed to blunder around in a half-circle, slanted down inland and stumbled to a landing on the beach, not 50 yards from the ice-clad ruins of the hut. As he did so, the thought was in his mind that during his struggle in the air with Roscoe, he had heard a cry, which neither he nor his antagonist had uttered.

The perception came to him as a memory, and in memory it seemed to be Jeanne's voice.

Now, unless his wits were wandering, he heard it again, and it called his name. He was half incredulous of its reality, even as he answered it. But the next moment, before he could extricate himself from his planes, or even attempt to get to his feet, he felt the pressure of her body, as she knelt over him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Signals.

There were a good many days after that—not days at all, really, but an interminable period of night—which were broken for Jeanne by no ray of hope whatever. She kept Philip and herself alive, from day to day, and this occupation left her hardly time enough to think whether there was anything to hope for or not.

Much of the time Philip was delirious; sometimes violently so, and yet she often had to leave him. When she did so, it was with no certainty at all that she would find him alive upon her return.

At last the conviction was forced upon her that Philip was actually on the road to recovery. His delirium became less violent and occurred at longer intervals. The frightful condition of his wounds began visibly to improve. Instinctively she resisted this conviction as long as she could, refusing almost passionately to begin to hope—for the return of hope brought an almost intolerable pain with it. Without hope there had been no fear, no apprehension—just as in a frozen limb there is no pain. But, as the possibility of his recovery became plainer, the slenderness of the thread by which his life was hanging became plainer, too. A thousand chances which she could not guard against might cut the thread and destroy the hope new-born.

He was able, at last, after a long sleep and a really hearty meal of sustaining food—which she hardly dared give him—to get up and walk out of their shelter to the star-vaulted beach. Fifty paces or so was all he was equal to; but at the end of the little promenade he expressed a disinclination to go back to the stuffy little shed which had been the scene of his long illness. The clean, wide, boundless air was bringing back the zest for life to him. So Jeanne brought out from the hut a great bundle of furs and made a nest of them on the beach, and there he lay back and she sat down beside him.

"Do you remember, Jeanne," he said, "the first time we sat out like this, there on the ice-floe beside the Aurora, and I told you how I had learned to fly?"

She locked her hand into his before she answered.

"I couldn't believe that night that I wasn't dreaming," she said softly.

"Nor I, either," he told her; "and, somehow, I can't believe it now—not fully;—not this part of it, anyway."

He had lifted the hand that was locked into his and pressed it to his lips before he spoke. There was a silence after that. Then, with a little effort, the girl spoke.

"Philip, do you remember my saying what a contempt you must have for the world that didn't know how to fly? Do you remember that, and the answer you made to it?"

He nodded.

"Philip, is that still there? Your contempt, I mean, for the world?"

"I don't believe," he said, "that you can even ask that seriously—you, who gave me first my soul back again and then, in these last weeks, my life. For it's been your life that has lived in me these last days—they must be a good many—just as it was your warmth and faith and fragrance that gave me back my soul, long ago." He paused a moment; then, when he went on his voice had a somewhat different quality. "But the other contempt, Jeanne, that still exists, or would exist if I gave it the chance, the world's contempt for me. Not even your faith could shake that."

She had been half-reclining beside him, but now she sat erect purposefully, like one who has taken a resolution. "I'm not so sure of that," she said, in a matter-of-fact tone, though there was an undercurrent of excitement in it. "Philip, I have been trying to solve a puzzle since you were ill. I hoped I could solve it by myself. If I were intelligent enough I'm sure I could; but I'll have to ask you to help me. It's a string of letters written around a picture, in a locket."

"A locket of yours?" he asked, surprised.

"Never mind about that just now." She spoke hastily and the undercurrent of excitement was growing stronger in her voice.

"Do you want me to try it now?" he asked. "If you'll make a light and show me the thing I'll see what I can do."

"Perhaps you won't need that," she said. "I can remember the letters. They are divided up into words, but I'm sure they are not any foreign language; they are in a code of some sort."

She did not turn to look at him, but she felt him stir a little, with suddenly aroused attention, and heard his breath come a little quicker.

"The first letter was all by itself," she said, trying to keep her voice steady. It was N—. And then, in one word, came the letters p-b-j-n-e-q."

"That means 'A coward,'" he said. His voice was unsteady, and he clutched suddenly at her hand. She could feel that his was trembling, so she took it in both of hers and held it tight.

PREPARING FOR LAST BATTLE OF THE WAR

Mexican Troops Rounding Up Rebel Remnant.

Mexico City, Jan. 14.—The rebels have concentrated at Santa Tomas, near Ciudad Guerrero, dispatches from the seat of war say.
Gen. Navarro has sent a detachment against them and that the last battle of the war is expected soon. From every side come reports to the effect that the rebels are disbanding and fleeing to the mountains in an attempt to escape the rigor of the law. It is understood that the rebels have about 500 men at Santa Tomas, but it is expected that the government forces will defeat them easily, as it appears that the rebels have given up hope of winning.
The local papers are filled with reports of cruelties inflicted by the rebels on prisoners captured in the towns of Chihuahua. Many were mercilessly shot after going through the form of a trial.

TO ELEVATE TRACKS

This is the Design of Four of Indiana's Principal Cities.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 14.—Following the conference in Indianapolis this week, city officials of South Bend and Fort Wayne met here and started work on the draft of the proposed law by which trunk lines of railroads may be forced to elevate their tracks through South Bend, Fort Wayne, Evansville and Terre Haute. Evansville and Terre Haute are interested in the plan, but were not represented at the conference. Mayor Grice, Harry Hogan, city attorney, and the entire board of public works came from Fort Wayne.
Another conference will be held in Indianapolis next week, at which time the draft of the bill will be submitted to officials of all the cities for final consideration. If satisfactory, the measure will be introduced in the legislature at once. The bill if enacted will mean the partial elimination of grade crossings in the four cities and at a future date the erection of new union stations.

INDIANA SOLONS TAKE A DAY OFF

Saturday No Day for Work, They Conclude.

TO ELECT SENATOR TUESDAY

The Senate Appointed a Committee to Arrange With the House For a Joint Session Next Tuesday at 11 O'clock, at Which Time John W. Kern Will Be Named to Succeed Albert J. Beveridge in the United States Senate.

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.—The solons felt that they ought to be given a chance to get back home to see the folks, so when the legislature adjourned for the day yesterday it was until next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. No Saturday labor for them. That will be all right when the rush of business along later in the session demands full hours. But at present, what's the use? So it was early adjournment yesterday and a hurried packing of grips and away, free from the burdens of state for two whole days.

The senate decided yesterday that the election of a United States senator be made a special order of business next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, and that a committee of two be appointed to arrange with the house for the joint meeting. Senators Shively and McCarty are the Democrats who will make speeches nominating John W. Kern for United States senator, and Senators Grube, Proctor and others will make addresses in seconding the nomination. For the Republicans, Senator Wood will nominate Albert J. Beveridge, and he will be followed by seconding speeches by Senators Durre and Gavitt.

Twenty-five new bills were introduced in the senate. The bill providing for the filling of vacancies in town offices by appointment instead of election was passed, and the bill for the election of county school superintendents by popular vote was killed after a spirited debate. Among the bills introduced was one by Senator Hauck for the abolishment of county councils and township advisory boards.

Wants District Schools Restored.

"The old-fashioned school meeting," and "the little red schoolhouse" were brought to the fore by Senator Powers in defense of his bill for the popular election of county superintendents. He also objected to the hold some inefficient superintendents seem to have on office.

"In our county we find our county superintendent has held office for the last twenty years," said Powers. "We can't get him out. It makes no difference when new trustees come in. He gets the job. The trouble with our school system has been that we are taking the rights of the people away and giving them to boards of education. Our old-fashioned school meeting is gone. I am in favor of placing the regulation of the school system in the hands of the fathers and mothers and putting the little red schoolhouse back on the sections where they used to be and where they belong."

Senators Hauck and Jackson, who favored indefinite postponement and who are members of the committee on elections, argued that the election by the people would put the office into politics, especially as the Powers bill provided for elections in presidential years. Senators Ratts and Grube took sharp issue saying that the office already is as deep in politics as it can get. "The office of county superintendent is controlled and dominated by politics more than any other office, and is as corrupt as any," declared Grube. "Men have been known to buy the office." The roll call showed twenty senators favoring the substitution of the minority report, which was favorable to the bill, and twenty-eight for indefinite postponement.

Asks For Votes For Women.

In the house twenty-one new bills were introduced, including one in favor of female suffrage in Indiana; another to make Columbus Day, Oct. 12, a legal holiday; one to require property holders to pay for pavement of street intersections, and another to provide that impeachment proceedings against any public official may be started by a taxpayer.

The woman's suffrage bill was introduced at the request of Mrs. A. D. Leach of Sullivan, president of the Sullivan County Bar association, and state president and organizer for the Political Equality association, a national organization with an Indiana branch. The bill has no relation to one proposed by the Indiana Woman's League, which proposes to introduce a bill providing that all women shall be given the right to vote in city elections.

The Tingle bill for impeachment of public officials attracted considerable attention. Under its provisions any taxpayer or organization of taxpayers, acting through the name of any one of their number, may petition the circuit court for impeachment, and it becomes incumbent on the court to act. Reports were heard from a number of committees, and in this connection Speaker Veneman called the attention of the house to one of the rules, the enforcing of which will go far toward economy. He told all committees that when they report on a bill the printing of which would be useless, they should recommend that the bill be not printed.

THE WITNESS WAS NOT REQUIRED TO ANSWER

But Implication Was Bad For Mrs. Schenk.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 14.—When Dan Phillips, a music store clerk, whose name has often been mentioned in connection with the case, was called to the stand, sensational testimony was given in the trial of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, accused of poisoning her husband, John O. Schenk.

Phillips testified that he knew Mrs. Schenk intimately and that he had frequently taken auto rides with her at night in her limousine car. Three times when the witness was asked questions by State's Attorney Handlan bearing upon whether or not he had had criminally intimate relations with Mrs. Schenk, he declined to answer, standing upon his constitutional rights to refuse to answer any questions that would incriminate him.

"You mean, Mr. Phillips," said Judge Jordan, "that you decline to answer because you would incriminate yourself?"

"Yes, sir," replied the witness. "Then you need not answer," returned the court.

"Frequently Mrs. Schenk spoke to me about her husband," said Phillips, "and I remember that several times she said she did not think he would live very long. So far as I know, Mr. Schenk never knew that I took auto rides with his wife."

The woman defendant now appears more interested in the trial than she has at any period since it began, but her demeanor is such as indicates that she fully expects to be acquitted.

BABY IN JAIL

Woman Accused of Murder Has Infant Eight Months Old.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Sally Karney, who was arrested on a grand jury indictment charging her with the murder of John Karney, her husband, last Halloween, says she is innocent.

Her husband was a storekeeper at Corkwell, and his widow, who is a small hunchback woman, has been conducting the store since his death. She has five small children dependent on her. When Mrs. Karney was arrested she said she thought the loss of her husband and being left alone in the world a cripple with five small children, was enough trouble without being charged with a crime she did not commit.

Mrs. Karney brought with her to the city her children. The four oldest ones, three girls and a boy, were left at the home of Mrs. Karney's sister. The oldest is only nine years old, while the youngest, a baby boy, is only eight months. The mother was permitted to take the infant to her cell.

BILLMAN HAS SECOND "HUNCH"

Shelby County Representative Introduces Bill to Join Rush and Henry Counties.

INTO A JUDICIAL DISTRICT

Measure is Looked Upon as Joker And Result of Political Scheming.

Representative Billman of Shelby county, who has had several "hunches" in the last few days, had his last "vision" Thursday, when he wrote another bill, to be introduced in the house of representatives in Indianapolis, to free his own dear Shelby county from the clutches of the sixteenth judicial district of which Rush county is the only member. The bill provides that Rush county shall be placed in a judicial district with Henry county and that Shelby county shall have a separate circuit.

The bill proposes to remove Rush from the Sixteenth judicial district and place it in the Fifty-third, with Henry county. This bill differs largely from the one which Mr. Billman had drawn involving a change in ten counties in order to give Shelby county a separate court. Mr. Billman said the measure introduced Friday accomplishes the same purpose as the former proposed bill and that if it is reported favorably by the committee on judiciary the other bill would not be introduced.

Rushville attorneys look upon the new bill with more disfavor than they did the first one. They thought the first proposal to place Rush county in a district with Decatur county was bad enough. Then came the idea, wafted over from Connersville, that Rush county might be joined in a judicial district with Union and Fayette counties. Local lawyers are inclined to believe that a bigger joker than the first plan.

But the last one is the cap that makes the climax to the whole proceedings, according to the belief of men here, interested in the proceedings. They believe, as it is generally believed in Henry county, that the bill is merely a political scheme to make Shelby county free as the winds, so that there would no longer be any danger of not electing a full set of Democratic officials. Shelby county is hopelessly Democratic, while Rush county is not quiet so much Republican. Henry county is strong Republican, so that the union of Henry and Rush would make a strong Republican district while Shelby would have everything its own way.

The New Castle Courier says: The news of the Billman bill created considerable amusement here today and there were many predictions that the measure would not get out of the judiciary committee. To increase the number of counties in this district is regarded as an absurd proposition.

The volume of business in the Henry circuit court is one of the greatest in the state and has grown to the extent that the uniting of the county with a superior court circuit has been seriously thought of as a matter for legislative consideration. In the Henry circuit court there is more litigation than in the court in Wayne county.

Representative Billman's bill is regarded as only the outcome of the ambitions of a number of politicians in Shelby county, who have long desired to sever the judicial ties which have bound the county with Rush county and which have made rather uncertain the aims and ambitions of a number of aspirants to wear ermine or occupy the office of prosecuting attorney for the circuit.

Among the members of the local bar the measure has not been given serious consideration. The bill is regarded as already dead. However, if it should receive attention, active steps will be taken to prevent its indorsement by the judiciary committee.

SOME SONG TODAY.
On page three of today's issue of the Daily Republican will be found the usual weekly song. This time it is far above the ordinary. "But You'll Never Know Till You Get Married" as sung by Trixie Friganza, who is starring in "The Sweetest Girl in Paris," is reproduced in full. It is said to be the best song in that popular show.
